

Virtual Intergenerational Games Night

For next week's Games night I have included the rules and material for 3 possible games we might play. While reading the rules beforehand is not necessary as I will teach each game before we play, for those that want to read through the rules to make sure they understand the game, it has been included (It's also possible that we might not wind up playing all three games, so keep that in mind). I have also included both .PDF and .docx formats of each player sheet to print off ahead of time (you only need to print off one of each, both should have 2 copies of the player sheets) so you can play along. For one of the games coloured pencils will make it easier to follow, but all games that require a print off can be played with a copy of the sheet and a pen or pencil. There are also .jpg files for those that would rather play on their computers using 'paint' or some similar program. Codenames does not require any additional material.